New Waves Of Nazi Planes Continue Aerial Blitzkrieg Throughout Night

THOMAS MAUL ENDORSED BY COMMITTEE

Republican Chieftains
Schedule Second Meeting
At Dinner Monday Night

Thomas Maul for State Senator, Allen G. Thurman for re-election as Assemblyman, and the entire national and state slate of Republican candidates for office were endorsed Monday night at a dinner meeting of the county Republican central committee, held at Hotel Raffles.

H. P. Brown, chairman, presided at the meeting and reported on a far-reaching and thorough program of precinct organization for the election campaign throughout the county, at the same time calling a second meeting of the committee, to be held Monday night, August 19th, at 6:30 o'clock at dinner at Hotel Raffles.

In addition to endorsing Thomas Maul for State Senator and Allen Thurman for re-election as Assemblyman, the committee gave its endorsement to the re-election candidacy of Congressman Harry L. Englebright, United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson, and pledged its support to the presidential and vice-presidential nominees of the party.

Looking forward to the primary election of August 27th, and to the general election in November, the committee appointed a board of three on finance including Leonard Zelwick, L. J. Anderson and L. A. Raffetto.

The proposal for precinct organization, as discussed, was explained as purely tentative at this time and although it was indicated that there will be a county-wide program in support of all of the party's candidates, the matter yet is in the formative stage and the suggestions of all members of the committee or of other interested parties will be welcomed.

The organization program would include six separate county-wide (Continued on Page Three)

Baltic Employees Six More Men

Lowest Level Workings
Of Old Mt. Hope Mine
Being Rehabilitated

Under the direction of Florian Sciaroni, president and manager, Baltic Mines Corporation, has put a crew of six men to work rehabilitating the "south-line adit," lowest level workings of the old Mount Hope mine, four miles north of Grizzly Flat on the East Belt of the Mother Lode and adjoining the corporation's Columbus Group property.

Following such retimbering as is required, and renewal of track ties, unstoped high-grade ore will be mined and shipped from the Mount Hope vein above the adit level, as a preliminary to sinking of one or more winzes into established pay-shoots. First stoping will be done in the shoot of high-grade approximately 800 feet from the adit portal.

Surface work also in progress includes construction of frame camp buildings on the site of the old Mt. Hope camp, and survey for grading of 1000 feet of road from the existing Baltic Peak-Grizzly Flat road to the site of the portal of the projected low-level adit to open up the 12-foot main Columbus Group vein and the 5-foot parallel vein 50 feet west of it. With work at the Columbus adit portal under way, a large compressor will be installed there to serve both adits. Temporarily a Rix portable has been installed at the Mount Hope portal.

According to J. D. Bomgardner, vice-president of Baltic Mines, considerable increased activity is developing in near-by East Belt properties in the Grizzly Flat district, where Dr. Thomas J. Wright and other Pasadenaans are interested in the Glory Anna and other properties.

BRITISH BELIEVED PREPARING TO TAKE AIR OFFENSIVE

Plane Production At Home Supplemented By Purchases In U. S. Will Equal Germany's Output, London Sources Report

By J. W. T. MASON
UNITED PRESS WAR EXPERT

Reports from London now are suggesting that Great Britain's confidence in victory does not depend on starving the German people next winter into capitulation. The British censor has passed a dispatch stating it is "doubted that the food blockade would prove to be a vital factor in winning the war."

The implication is that Great Britain thinks it is possible that Germany can obtain sufficient food from conquered territory to eliminate an extreme condition of hunger next winter among the German people, regardless of what happens to the captive populations. This belief follows closely upon recent statements by British leaders that Great Britain is preparing soon to develop offensive warfare since no conflict can be won solely by defensive means.

J. W. T. Mason

The British fleet now is operating offensively in its blockade activities but more than that may be necessary to win the war for Great Britain. The blockade is reducing Germany's food supplies despite the seizures by Germany of conquered harvests, and to this extent Britain is counting on keeping the German morale below normal.

However, it will be essential for further offensive strokes to be developed against the totalitarian powers. A military invasion would seem to be as improbable for the British as for the Germans.

It is possible that war developments in the Balkans may involve Russia, and Germany may find herself engaged in a conflict to the east and southeast; but Great Britain cannot count too much on that contingency.

Rather, it would seem that the British expect to take the offensive in the air. British airplane production plus purchases in America are said in London to give Great Britain a parity at present with German output. The British have stated that soon the number of their planes will begin to surpass the German, and next year they will have a large superiority.

If that is true, a major British air offensive against Germany will be possible next spring. Britain would have one advantage in such an operation which is denied Germany. The area of Great Britain is small, permitting easy concentration of defending British planes. Germany, however, has far larger territory to defend and in addition the Germans must keep a considerable number of planes in reserve along their eastern and southeastern borders as a precautionary measure.

A large scale air assault on Germany thus would allow the British to select their own objectives, concentrating attacks far beyond some of the German defensive areas. For the present, Germany is increasing the intensity of her air offensive over the British Isles, but all reports indicate Great Britain has no difficulty in assembling her own planes very quickly at places of attack.

The British, too, are allowing foreign newspaper correspondents to watch these air battles which they would not do if the damage were excessive and seriously harmful.

The British are not returning the German massed blows now in like measure, but are using much smaller squadrons for retaliatory action. (Continued on Page 3)

Wheelbarrow Derby Contestants Should Register Promptly

"Help Wanted."

That is the sign that might be displayed at the county fair office in the basement of the courthouse, where entries of a number of firms and individuals in the John Studebaker Wheelbarrow Derby at the county fair on August 25 are being received.

Numerous entries are on file, officials report, but many of them are entries only, representing the willingness of someone to sponsor a contestant in the race, but no contestant is listed.

The derby officials point out that first awards range as high as $50 and that last year prizes exceeding $300 in total value were distributed.

Those who wish to compete in the race will be provided with a sponsor if they will apply at the County fair office in the basement of the courthouse.

Army Pay May Be Raised

New Bill Would Attempt To Adjust "Money Matters"
Of Men Called In Draft

WASHINGTON (UP)—Administration leaders today made the first move toward compromise on the peacetime conscription bill and hoped the step would thin the ranks of the measure's opponents.

Chairman Morris Sheppard of the senate military affairs committee accepted an amendment proposed by Sen. Josh Lee, D., Okla., to raise the basic pay of enlisted men from $21 to $30 a month. Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley said he approved of Sheppard's action.

The prospective army conscript who may have wondered what might happen to his rent, installment and insurance payments while he was in service got his answer today.

Under the terms of a bill proposed by the war department and introduced in the house by Chairman Andrew J. May, D., Ky., of the house military affairs committee, the conscript would be assured:

1. That for three months his landlord could not evict his wife and children from their home—provided they did not pay more than $80 a month rent—thus giving them time to move into a cheaper home. The court through which the landlord sought to collect his rent might grant such additional relief as it "thinks" just. The unpaid rent would have to be made good when the conscript finished his army service.

2. That the finance company could not seize his car for non-payment of the installments, except by court action. The court might order the finance company to return the payments—or part of them—in order to regain possession of the car, or "make such other disposition of the case as may be equitable."

3. That his insurance policy would not lapse for non-payment of premiums, but would remain in force—up to $5,000 face value—and then, after he got out of the army, he would have to pay up the back premiums in one year to keep it in effect. If he had more than $5,000 insurance he would have to cash in the amount above that.

4. That if he failed to pay taxes on real estate when they came due the tax collector could not sell his property, but would wait until after he left the military service. Then the tax would be due with interest at six per cent.

Northside Forest Fire

What was believed to be the first fire of major consequence this season on or near the boundaries of Eldorado National Forest was burning on Canyon Creek north of Georgetown this afternoon.

Preliminary reports said the fire was just within or near the forest boundary. Forty men from Caldor CCC camp and an equal number from Snowline camp had been dispatched to the scene by the forest headquarters to be under the supervision of Ranger Frank McCaslin, of Georgetown district.

Ranger McCaslin also had a crew fighting the fire from his district and County Supervisor William Breedlove was co-operating in the assignment of men to the fire. A state crew of seven also was assisting. Unconfirmed reports said the blaze covered thirty acres and was sweeping easterly up Canyon Creek.

CHAPTER XI

"SO YOU got him, Culbertson?" Myer snarled at Egypt's captor.
"Yes, you fool! And don't use my name. Who did this?" Culbertson indicated the bed.
Myer shook his head. "I don't know," he stammered. "I heard her quarreling with a man. I listened at the bottom of the stairs. They went up to the third floor. And then, this fellow walked in." He indicated Egypt.

"Two girls left my party together," Culbertson muttered. "But that other one wouldn't have left if she knew Lou had been killed. I don't understand it. Who is this man? Speak up!"
"He's a dick," Myer said hurriedly. "He walked in and took charge of things. I thought I could ease him off, but he caught the girl slipping down the steps and then heard a shot up here. I tried to stop him, and he clipped me on the jaw and knocked me out."

"Detective, eh?" Culbertson rapped at Egypt. "Then you were lying?"
Egypt shrugged, smiling faintly. "Guilty," he admitted.
"Search him, Myer," Culbertson ordered.

WHILE that was being done Egypt asked Culbertson, "Who is this fellow? He's obviously a fake—not a minister."
Culbertson shrugged in turn. "He runs a boarding house where people can stay without publicity."

"Culbertson!" Myer bleated in alarm.
"He might as well know now," Culbertson said scathingly. "The police will be down on you in a hurry anyhow."

Myer's hand was trembling as he leaped through the papers he had taken from Egypt's inside coat pocket.
"This man is a private dick for the Apex Surety Company," he stated nervously.

"What!" Culbertson shouted.
"He's right," Egypt said coolly. "Apex Surety," Culbertson repeated slowly. He stood silent a moment. "Myer, go down and lock up your house," he ordered finally.

He stepped to the bed, where he picked up the fine steel chain Egypt had dropped. Myer sidled from the room. Not until he was out of sight did Culbertson act.

"In the closet," he ordered Egypt.
Egypt obeyed and received yet another surprise. A heavy door cleverly concealed in the back of the closet, was open now. He walked past it into another closet and from that closet into a bedroom, passing as he did so from Myer's house into the adjoining house, where, a short time before there had been lights and music and sounds of gaiety.

CULBERTSON followed close at his heels, gun ready.
"Where do we go from here?" Egypt asked coolly.
Culbertson's eyes were narrowed, hard. "I'm afraid, my dear chap, that we go a long way from here."

The rings in the ends of the fine steel chain clinked thinly as Culbertson gestured expressively with the hand that held it.
"We don't need to mince words," he went on calmly. "You must be an intelligent man, or you would not have found this house. Your only mistake was in coming alone. Too bad."

"Yes?" Egypt encouraged.
"Murder is a bad thing," Culbertson explained. "Regrettable, but necessary. You have been clever enough to find a trail and follow it. There seems to be nothing to do but wipe out the trail and disappear."

Stewart Says—

Hitler Has Task Policing Nations He Has Conquered

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

HINTS ARE reaching Washington that Herr Hitler is experiencing considerable difficulty in consolidating the Nazis' dominance in all the countries they've been conquering so rapidly of late.

These stories are vague, of course, on account of the censorship, but they come from so many different sources, are so increasingly numerous and are in such general agreement that, by state departmental and army and navy officials, all of whom are receiving them, they're beginning to be quite widely credited.

The blitzkrieg is almost incredibly and quickly effective, to be sure, but it has to be followed by a civil set-up to keep the vanquished populations in order and working to the Germans' advantage.

Now, naturally these populations, although beaten, are in no pro-German frame of mind. They still have to be policed and coerced and everlastingly spied on, or it's a foregone conclusion that they'll turn outright rebellious at the first opportunity.

A country having been militarily defeated, Herr Hitler's system is to establish for it a government of its own citizens—but honest-to-goodness totalitarians, such as can be found in small numbers almost anywhere. It goes virtually without saying, however, that their own countrymen hate these functionaries, probably more than they hate even Germans. Moreover, Adolf himself is suspicious of them; they require constant watching.

Himmler on the Job
So, as fast as a beaten country capitulates, Herr Himmler, chief of the German Gestapo, appears in its capital, and proceeds to organize a Nazi secret service.

This might be all right if Herr Himmler had only one or two countries to worry about.

But he has on his hands now Austria, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium, Little Luxemburg and France.

This must spread the Gestapo pretty thin.
In short, it appears, Adolf has done his conquering so fast that he hasn't got his conquerors thoroughly conquered.

The Fuehrer is threatened with a problem somewhat like Japan's. The Japs can lick the Chinese at any given spot, but all of China won't STAY licked. The Nazis have a lot of eastern Europe, Scandinavia, the Low Countries and France temporarily DOWN, but will they stay OUT?

The question critics ask is: "Although Adolf has taken off a tremendously big bite and is industriously and, up to date, quite successfully chewing it, can he finally swallow and assimilate it?" There are skeptics.

More, Too

And even if he gets away with this bite the meal won't be finished.
Sweden, to be sure, wouldn't be much of an additional mouthful.

But Britain isn't disposed of yet. Russia also shows signs of turning ugly.

Nor is Italy dependable. The Italians are capable of flopping out of a bargain with Germany. They did in the last World war. They were pledged then to help the kaiser. First they didn't do it. Then they actually went in on the other side. Wilhelm referred to them outright as "traitors."

Adolf obviously is gambling on Spain, but Dictator Franco's tie-up with Il Duce Mussolini is a good deal closer than his relations with the Fuehrer. Franco is likely to renege with him.

To Sum Up

Summing it all up, there are plenty of competent observers who say that:
Adolf appears to be winning today.

They think he may WIN—for the time being.
But they don't believe his triumph, if he scores one, will last long.

They compare him with Napoleon—and everybody knows how HE ended.
Nevertheless, it'll be quite a record for that one-time house painter if he goes down in history as a second Napoleon—their respective finishes notwithstanding.

Use a very slow oven (225 to 250 degrees, Fah.) when baking fruit whips.

SOIL DISTRICT VOTE IS CANVASSED BY SUPERVISORS

The vote in the recent special election on the matter of forming a Soil Conservation District in El Dorado County, with boundaries conforming approximately to those of El Dorado Irrigation District, was canvassed Monday by the Board of Supervisors and it was found that the proposal to form a district was sustained, the vote being 75 in favor of and 4 against.

The canvass also showed that W. J. Clark was named a director with 66 votes; S. A. Bivans and Leo Ench with 65 votes each; Roy M. Marks with 64 votes and J. C. Rasmussen with 61 votes. All are directors of the district at large.

The directors, at their organization meeting, are empowered to designate a secretary for the district and also, in the nature of their organization, to determine which of those recently elected shall have terms expiring in 1941, and which shall serve terms expiring in 1943.

try said, "but full reports are not yet available."

By UNITED PRESS

Germany attacked Britain again today at blitzkrieg tempo.

It was the third successive day of mass aerial combat over Britain and screaming headlines of the London Daily Mail warned the public: "Blitzkrieg is on!"

The Germans claimed that they controlled the air of Dover, historic channel port as their planes roared across the narrow English strait in flights of 50, 70, 80 and 100 or more bombers and fighters.

The pace of today's fighting indicated that even more planes were engaged than yesterday when an estimated 500 attacked Britain on Sunday when some 400 were involved.

There was a possibility that for the first time German long-range artillery mounted on the French coast was firing across the Channel, presumably in the Dover area.

Although both London and Berlin authorities said they had no knowledge or confirmation of the shelling reports observers at a British channel port reported what appeared to be shell explosions and said shell fragments had been picked up.

In yesterday's fierce air combats the British claimed that 62 German planes were shot down and that 13 defending British craft were lost. In Sunday's and Monday's air raids the Germans lost a total of 127 planes, according to British reports.

The German high command admitted the loss of 24 planes but asserted that 92 British planes had been destroyed, 43 in air combat, the remainder on the ground or by anti-aircraft fire in the course of retaliatory British raids over German-held territory.

There virtually was no let-up in the German air attack. It continued through the night with raids concentrated in Wales and southwest and northeast Britain—areas little affected by the daylight attacks. Other bombers raided Scotland.

With daylight, mass attacks on coastal points were renewed. A flight of 50 German bombers dropped 80 bombs on a Thames estuary town. In another battle 100 German raiders, including 35 Dorniers, attacked the southeast coast. The British reported seven of these were shot down.

The British reported that an average of 27 German planes a day have been lost in the last seven days' fighting. They placed a German loss since June 18 up to last midnight at 453 planes.

BRITISH BELIEVED PREPARING TO TAKE HUGE AIR OFFENSIVE

Apparently the British strategy is to allow the Germans partly to exhaust themselves in the air especially by heavy losses of pilots, while British strength is being conserved. When Britain definitely establishes an offensive air superiority over Germany, then a reversal of the situation may come.

The Italian newspaper comment again predicts that the war will be long. If it goes far into next year, there is little reason to doubt the British claim that with increasingly large purchases in America, Britain's air fleet may outnumber the German. Then, Germany will be bombarded with increasing intensity while the British expect Hitler will be unable to retaliate in great force. The British seem to be counting on this new war development, coupled with German food shortages, though not actual starvation, to withdraw victory from Hitler's hands.

Some grain crops in Solano county have been seriously damaged by "foot rot" this season.

West Pointers Build a Blitzkrieg Device

Heavy trucks run across the pontoon bridge completed in two hours and forty-five minutes by West Point cadets in their first practical training in river crossing, part of their summer engineering course at Pine Bush, N. NEW YORK (UP)—Ed Barrow, who owns one of the most luxuriant sets of eyebrows known to man or beast, is still talking for the New York Yankees and the indications are he will continue to talk for them for some time to come.

When I came upon him he had just flushed a covey of quail out of his eyebrows and they were ducking and diving in the mid-afternoon sun, twittering hysterically as quail have a habit of doing at this time of the year.

I decided to ask Mr. Barrow, whom I have whimsically nicknamed Cousin Ed, a very personal and original question. I decided to come right out and ask him what had happened to the Yankees. I could see by his startled expression that I had hit upon a closely guarded secret. Something really had happened to the Yankees and Cousin Ed seemed to realize it fully.

"To be perfectly frank," he admitted, looking furtively, first to the right, then to the left, "they aren't as good as we thought they were in the Spring. Some of our key men have slipped a little further than any of us realized. Whether their slump is temporary or permanent we can't tell yet." I wanted to know if Cousin Ed, whom I have nicknamed Ed Barrow, had finally given up on the Yankees for this year.

"Well, our prospects don't look any too good, do they?" he said. "But I've been in baseball too long to concede defeat until the race is actually decided. I'd be dishonest, however, if I failed to admit that we are already looking ahead to next year." Did this mean that the gentlemen intended to make some experiments immediately?

"No, we are going to play the spring out with what we have," he said. "We don't plan to bring up any more youngsters from our farm clubs. But next spring we will probably bring up more than we ever have in the past."

Specifically just what changes did Cousin Ed-Mr. Barrow think would have to be made in order to restore the full bloom of health to the Yankees?

"That's Joe McCarthy's job," he dodged, executing a bit of Billy Conn-like foot work. "We merely bring the players in. From then on the business of building and rebuilding is up to the manager."

While I did not begin my own baseball career on the sand lots at Cooperstown with Colonel Abner Doubleday—or is the name Tripleday?—I really have been around long enough myself to know that the manager, usually tells the players where to play. But after all Cousin Ed must have some idea of what is needed and what players he has on the farm who can fit into the various uncertain spots.

"We are going to need pitching," he confessed, "and we have a number of young fellows at Newark and Kansas City we are going to bring in next spring. They are just minor league names now but we have lots of hopes that they, or at least some of them, will come through for us."

"And of course we may have to do some tinkering with the infield, although I'm not sure about that. We'll have to wait until next spring to be sure that some of the fellows who have slipped can't come back. This is a situation we must be prepared to meet, and with that in mind we probably will bring up the entire Kansas City infield, which is generally admitted to be the best in the minors."

This would be something of a record, wouldn't it, I asked, that is, bringing up an entire infield intact?

"I guess it would," answered my cousin, "and it certainly would be a record if all of them stuck."

Just to keep the records straight, the infield is composed of Stum at first, Priddy at second, Rizzuto at short and Hitecock at third, all good hitters, good fielders and good throwers. Priddy and Rizzuto are said to be the best second base combination in the history of the minor leagues and are considered surepops to make the grade in the American League next season. So that brings up an interesting question—what is going to happen to Joe Gordon who just a year ago was being acclaimed as the best young second baseman to come along since Eddie Collins day?

Mr. Barrow lifted his eyebrows, a process that was reminiscent of a man rolling up an awning, and smiled at me sweetly.

"Young man, you'll have to ask Joe McCarthy about that. I haven't been out to the park yet today but at last reports he was still managing our ball club."

groups sponsored by the central committee. These would include a unit of the Anti-Third Term Club, a unit of the Democratic Willkie Club, a branch of the Republican Women's Club, the Young Republicans' Club, Republican Circles and Willkie Volunteers. The last three named groups have been functioning for some time.

Each precinct of the county, under the plans contemplated will have its working unit with a chairman and vice-chairman and committees on signatures and the distribution of buttons, badges, stickers and campaign literature.

JONES FAMILY "BROKE" BUT GAY IN TUESDAY FEATURE ON EMPIRE SCREEN

Hard times come a-knocking at the door of America's first screen family, the Joneses. Pa is laid up, they lose their home and all that is left is the family car and the trailer.

But they haven't lost their sense of humor and their will to win. The qualities that have endeared them to millions are shown in bold relief in "On Their Own," the 20th Century-Fox film which is coming Tuesday to the Empire Theatre for one day only.

The Joneses on hand include: Spring Byington, George Ernest, Ken Howell, June Carlson, Florence Roberts and Billy Mahan.

Ma Jones takes over as head of the family and she decides that the only place for them is California. So off they trek for the golden west—where more hard knocks await them.

Jack and Roger can't find work and things look even darker when, by a stroke of business genius, they trade their car and trailer to John Qualen for a ramshackle court.

Then the fun begins—their tenants include such interesting folks as lovely Marguerite Chapman, with whom Jack falls in love at first sight; Charles Judels, his Latin accent and his eight bimbos; Chick Chandler, the irrepressible comic who has, for "On Their Own," a troupe of trained dogs; Forrester Harvey, a slightly bawdy inventor, and an affected ex-actress, Isobel Randolph.

Sharing the Tuesday program is "Ski Patrol," an action drama of war on skis, starring Kathryn Adams, a comparative newcomer to screen prominence.

Hudson Shows New '41 Cars

Summerfield Returns From Unveiling Of Latest Models At San Francisco

Returning from a private San Francisco preview of three new lines of Hudson cars for 1941, James E. Summerfield, Hudson dealer for this city, disclosed today that the new Hudson cars, first of the industry's new model offerings, began rolling off the assembly lines several weeks ago at the company's huge Detroit plant, after many months of preparation involving important chassis changes and an advanced style design. Public announcement of the new cars will follow in a few weeks, Summerfield said.

Mr. and Mrs. Summerfield also visited Treasure Island during their trip.

In describing the new Hudson models, Summerfield said: "Striking new body styling, longer wheelbases and an extensive list of improvements and refinements are offered in the three new 1941 Hudson models. Spotlit is an advanced development in color harmony appearing for the first time in a full line of cars in standard production."

The new development, termed Symphonic Styling by Hudson designers, will offer buyers, at no extra cost, even in the lowest price field, a selection of interior color combinations that harmonize with exterior colors. Up to now, Hudson stylists point out, one upholstery color has usually done duty with every body color. Carpets, floor mats and trim have introduced still other assorted interior colors and tones.

"Symphonic Styling now offers a complete harmony between the interior shades of upholstery and the trim and the exterior body colors. Basically, the new 1941 Hudson interiors are styled in three color combinations, grey, green and tan—the one included in any car being determined by the exterior color. For example, if tan is the basic color harmony selected, not only the exterior body color but the upholstery, headlining, trim, carpets, floor mats and instrument panel will also be in harmonizing shades of tan.

"The ensemble effect achieved by Symphonic Styling is entirely new in motor cars and can be described as an application of the same harmonious color trends observed in well-planned home furnishings, ensembles in women's apparel, and the like.

2 OF PLACERVILLE FAMILY ARE PATIENTS IN HOSPITAL

Two members of the family of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Rupley, of Placerville, are patients in a hospital at Sacramento.

Jack Rupley had been in the hospital for several days for treatment of a heart condition and on Monday his sister, Marilyn, was operated upon at the same hospital for appendicitis.

Members of the family reported Tuesday morning that Miss Marilyn appeared to have passed through the operation satisfactorily and is resting easily.

The condition of her brother, Jack, who was removed to the hospital following a heart seizure on Wednesday of last week, continues serious. The family reports that with all conditions favorable, it will probably be necessary that he remain in the hospital for about two months and then look forward to a long period of convalescence.

WESTERN HORSE PLAGUE IS REPORTED AMONG COUNTY STOCK

Equine encephalomyelitis, commonly known as western horse disease, sleeping sickness, paralysis and other names, has appeared at Coloma, and all horse and mule owners in the county are warned by Dr. L. J. Anderson, local veterinarian, that their animals should be vaccinated against the disease.

Usually the disease assumes epidemic form and runs through all horses and mules in a community. It is probably spread by biting insects and mosquitoes. Vaccination is very effective and is recommended by the State Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Anderson states that he has sent for a supply of vaccine and will endeavor to be of assistance to those who wish his services. Horse owners in the western end of the county are advised to get in touch with Dr. Hammond in Green Valley. Encephalomyelitis has already broken out in Sacramento county.
